A Constituent’s Guide to the Albany Common Council, Part 14: The Community Police Review Board Transition!

Each month, we’ll discuss all things Common Council.

The Community Police Review Board \(CPRB\) is a police oversight body that reviews the conduct of the Albany Police Department. The CPRB was formally established after the Common Council passed Local Law 2 of 2000, which formalized the Community Police Review Board as an official body within the City of Albany (Section 33 of Chapter 42 of the City Code). Since then, the City of Albany has contracted with Albany Law School’s Government Law Center (GLC) to assist them in performing their functions—until this year.

The need to transition the CPRB from their original operational model stemmed from the GLC sharing that they would not be reapplying for a contract to continue providing support for the board for 2025. This presented a substantial issue for the CPRB’s sustainability as the GLC provided fundamental support for their daily operations. As there were no other interested parties to replace the services provided by the GLC, Local Law D of 2024 arose to end the CPRB’s reliance on a contracted organization and transition operational support for the Board’s activities to the Common Council.

The incorporation of the Community Police Review Board, as outlined in Local Law D of 2024, will have the CPRB act as a separate agency under the oversight of the Common Council with independent daily operations under the direction of the CPRB. This structure was created due to the board’s request to not be under the influence or supervision of the Mayor, which required the development of an administrative structure that complied with the Charter of Albany.

At this point in the transition, the City has adopted all the tasks of the GLC, including providing space for offices and meetings, posting hiring notices for the Program Director, and centralizing the CPRB’s website alongside other city entities. The Board was fully integrated under the Common Council on January 1st, 2025 as their contract with the Center for Law and Government ceased and Local Law D of 2024 went into effect.
